PORTFOLIO COMMENTARY

The Portfolio performance, as measured by the growth in net assets per share, was 2.5% in November. The portfolio underperformed the benchmark S&P/ASX300, which rose by 2.8%. Since listing, the Perpetual Equity Investment Company Limited's (PIC) portfolio has returned 6.5% per annum.

A recent addition to the PIC portfolio has been Alumina Ltd. (ASX: AWC). Alumina Ltd. is an Australian-based resources company that invests in worldwide bauxite mining, alumina refining and aluminium smelting through its 40% ownership of subsidiary Alcoa World Alumina and Chemicals ("AWAC") – the world's largest alumina business. Alumina Ltd.'s joint venture partner, US-listed Alcoa, owns the remaining 60% of AWAC and manages the day-to-day operations.

AWAC employs over 7,000 people to mine and refine bauxite to produce alumina, which is then sold to smelters around the world. AWAC also processes a percentage of the alumina refined themselves to produce aluminium metal. AWAC has a global network of mines and refineries, with the majority of its operations positioned in the lower-cost quartiles.

In 2015/16 Alumina Ltd. faced a cyclical headwind of a lower alumina price resulting from oversupply from Chinese refineries. However, being a low-cost producer allowed AWAC to remain cash flow positive in this lower commodity price environment, enabling them to maintain production and continue to pay a dividend to shareholders. This oversupply has moderated in recent months, leading to a higher alumina spot price that has benefitted Alumina Ltd.

The Manager believes we may be entering a period where the Chinese market is supply constrained in terms of locally mined bauxite. This may lead to Chinese refiners having to import more bauxite from offshore markets such as Australia, which could drive the commodity price higher. Compounding this, the Chinese government has conducted several environmental inspections in recent weeks that will likely result in sanctions on alumina refinery and smelters plants in the province of Shanxi, which account for more than 20% of the local Chinese alumina market. These investigations have sparked speculation of potential further supply issues, pushing the alumina price higher.

Alumina Ltd., with bauxite mining and refining assets in Australia, has benefitted from these developments. The Manager sees further upside in the share price should environmental scrutiny in China persist.

Alumina Ltd.'s cost of production is approximately $200/t, whilst most Chinese alumina companies cost of production has risen from circa $250/t to closer to $280/t in recent months. Some cost increases in China are arguably cyclical, like rail bottlenecks transporting bauxite and alumina around the country due to priority being given to coal ahead of winter. But other cost increases are likely much more structural, such as environmental compliance, trucking load restrictions, and the decreasing availability of extractable and good quality domestic bauxite. The behavior of Chinese alumina companies of late, scouring world for bauxite, suggests they are getting concerned.

As at 30 November 2016, Alumina was 3.1% of PIC's portfolio.

MARKET REVIEW

The Australian equity market, as measured by the S&P/ASX 300 Accumulation Index, rose 2.8% during November. The US presidential election was undoubtedly the biggest event of the month, with equity markets selling off heavily on Donald Trump's victory, before rallying sharply the following day on bullish expectations regarding Trump's program of fiscal stimulus, corporate tax cuts and reduced regulation. Banking stocks led the rally while many defensive and high-yielding stocks underperformed as capital rotated into cyclical sectors likely to benefit from a more inflationary economic environment. Mining stocks also performed well as the majority of commodities rallied strongly. Gold fell sharply as the US dollar rallied, while oil gained ground after OPEC reached an agreement to cut production by 1.2mbd (million barrels per day) by January 2017. The Australian dollar lost ground against the surging USD to close the month down 2.9% to $0.7388 cents.

The best performing sectors for the month were financials ex-property (+6.0%), utilities (+3.7%) and energy (+3.3%). The worst performers were health care (-1.6%), telecommunication services (-0.4%) and consumer discretionary (-0.3%). As a whole, industrial stocks (+2.8%) underperformed resource stocks (+3.1%) and large cap stocks (+3.6%) outperformed small cap stocks (-1.2%).
