Any provisions for deferred tax on set up costs and on unrealised gains and losses are excluded. Past performance is not indicative of future performance. Inception date is 18 December 2014

PORTFOLIO COMMENTARY

The Portfolio performance, as measured by the growth of the net assets per share, was 2.1% in May. Despite positive returns, the portfolio did not keep pace with the benchmark S&P/ASX300 which rose 3.1%. Since listing, the Perpetual Equity Investment Company Limited (PIC) has returned 6.2% per annum.

After bouncing last month, BHP and Rio slumped again in May. Since the portfolio does not own any of their shares, investors were shielded from this volatility. The portfolio also benefited from its positions in Bank of America and GrainCorp.

Sky Network TV was the key detractor during the month. Whilst the company has faced some falls in subscriptions, management has a number of options to improve revenue and earnings, especially once current capex is complete. The stock rallied significantly after month end with the announcement of the merger between Sky and Vodafone NZ to create an integrated telco and media group.

One of the key holdings in the portfolio is Royal Philips, a Dutch industrial company founded in 1891. The Manager believes that until recently Phillips has broadly been a poorly run conglomerate with consistent restructuring charges stemming from their wide-ranging portfolio of electronic businesses; from semiconductor production to television manufacturing to LED lighting. Current CEO, Frans Van Houten, appointed in 2011 put into motion a program of selling non-core assets, with the intention of simplifying the operations and business structure. In 2012 Phillips sold its television manufacturing, in 2013 it sold its audio and video recording operations, in 2015 it sold its upstream lighting business and most recently it has spun out its downstream lighting business as a separately listed entity. This rationalisation has left Phillips with two core business units – health technology and consumer lifestyle products – which the Manager believes positions them as a much more focused company.

The health technology business will now account for approximately 75% of earnings, made up largely of high-end hospital equipment for diagnosis and monitoring of patients.

Perpetual

This segment also has strong recurring earnings from the ongoing maintenance and servicing of this equipment, which is costly and time consuming for a hospital to change once built into their technology network. The consumer electronics business will make up the remaining 25% of earnings, where Phillips owns high margin consumer brands like Sonicare toothbrushes, Phillips shavers and kitchen appliances. In the Manager's opinion, this simplified operating structure and exposure to stable growth industries with higher margin solutions should result in Phillips' valuation rerating higher, particularly given its leverage to the healthcare sector.

MARKET REVIEW

The Australian equity market, as measured by the S&P/ASX 300 Accumulation Index, rose 3.1% during May. Global markets delivered mostly positive results, with developed markets performing well while emerging markets lost ground on the back of falling commodity prices. Better than expected economic data, solid US company 1Q earnings results and hawkish commentary from the Federal Reserve saw major markets move higher during the month. With the exception of oil, commodity prices fell heavily, with iron ore losing 24.3% as Chinese regulators clamped down on speculative futures trading. In Australia, Federal Treasurer Scott Morrison delivered his first budget, which forecasts a deficit of $37.1bn, around 2.2% of GDP. Meanwhile the Reserve Bank of Australia (RBA) moved to lower the cash rate to 1.75%, following the release of weaker than expected core inflation figure in March, which came in well below the RBA's target band of 2.0-3.0%. The Australian dollar dropped accordingly, falling against most major currencies and sinking 5.1% against the USD to close the month at US$0.7245.

The best performing sectors for the month were health care (+9.4%), information technology (+7.0%) and consumer discretionary (+5.6%). The worst performers were materials (-3.0%), energy (-1.6%) and consumer staples (-0.9%). As a whole, industrial stocks (+1.5%) underperformed resource stocks (+15.4%) and large cap stocks (+3.5%) outperformed small cap stocks (+3.0%).

INSIGHTS: ARE UTILITY AND INFRASTRUCTURE STOCKS TOO GOOD TO BE TRUE?

Many infrastructure businesses – such as toll roads, airports, gas pipelines and transition lines – are attractive investments as they can be hard to replicate, often generate strong cash flow and offer inflation protection. But are they too good to be true? Read Perpetual's latest Insights piece for one perspective on why these businesses may be riskier than they seem.
